Laird Said to Have Opposed Hanoi-Haiphong Bomb Plan

Secretary of Defense Melvin B. Laird was less than enthusiastic about bombing targets in the vi-cinity of Banoi and Balphong be-fore President Ninn made the decision to launch the attacks over the weekend.

Asked whether Mr. Laird had urged or supported the strikes, which were conducted Saturday for the first time in four years, a Defense Department official answered obliquely: "He's been on the side of restraint on Vietnam since taking office."

Mr. Laird, the official recalled, had initially opposed the ground incursions into Cambodia in the summer of 1970 and has consistently argued for troop withirawals larger than military men have supported.

WASHINGTON, April 18 troops moved through the Demili-(NYT).—Well-placed Pentagon tarked Zone into South Victuam, sources hinted yesterday that the administration dusted off" a wide range of contingency plans for consideration, sources said.

The plans included large scale air strikes in the paphandle of North Vietnam, hitting targets in the Hanoi-Haiphong area, mining the harbor of Haiphong, blockading the North Vietnamese coast and assisting South Vietnamese marines in staging commando raids into the North. Officials said that on all targeting decisions, recommendations for and against different actions might be raised anywhere along the chain of command from military commanders in Vietnam to Pacific Command headquarters in Honolulu, to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Defense and State De-partments and the White House.

On the Hanoi-Haiphong option, administration sources said, Mr. Laird advised the White House that the area contained petroleum stocks and truck and tank parks of substantial military significance. -

He also noted that destruction of such targets would have little effect on the battlefield for weeks or months, the sources reported.
"But he realized there were. more than strictly military con-siderations," a Defense official declared.

Government sources said that up until Friday evening the de-cision had been not to strike the Hanoi-Haiphong area. In fact, they said, B-52 bombers and fighter-bombers were scheduled to make a major raid just south of the 20th Parallel, in the vicinity of Thanh Hoa and Bai Thuong.

Nixon Aide Agrees to Testify At Senate Probe of ITT Case

By Robert Siner

Sets Conditions for Appearance

WASEINGTON, April 18 (IHT). -Presidential aide Peter M. Flanigan agreed yesterday to testify in the Senate investigation of the billion-dollar settlement of an anti-trust suit against ITT, ap-parently heading off a confronta-tion between the White House and Congress over executive privi-iege.

Mr. Flanigan, in a letter to the Judiciary Committee chairman Sen. James O. Eastland, D., Miss., said that he would be willing to appear if questioning was limited to his role in hiring an outside financial analyst whose report to the Justice Department formed the basis for the ITT settlement. The committee now is in its seventh week of hearings on charges that the settlement was linked to a pledge of $400,000 by an International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. subsidiary to help defray the costs of the 1972 Republican National Convention and accusations that Richard G. Kleindienst, President Nixon's nominee for attorney general, and other top Republicans were involved or aware of the deal. Sen. Eastland indicated that the committee would meet in executive session to decide whether or not to agree to Mr. Flani-gan's conditions. Acceptance seemed certain, however, since Sen. Sam J. Ervin jr., D., N.C., who has been leading the fight to have the White House aide appear before the panel, said that he was satisfied with Mr. Flanigan'e offer.

Later, committee sources said that it had voted to send Mr. Flanigan a counterproposal on ground rules for his appearance, They refused, however, to disclose details of the proposal,

Principle Invokea

Last week, presidential counsel John W. Dean 3d told the committee that Mr. Flanigan could not accept any invitation to testify and cited the principle executive privilege, the right of the President to keep secret confidential interactions between himself and his advisers.

This brought a storm of protest from key Senate Democrats including Sen. Ervin, who threatened to block the Eleindienst nomination unless Mr. Flanigan was permitted to

Meanwhile, the Judiciary Committee, in open session, heard testimony today from the U.S. attorney for Soutbern California, Harry D. Steward, on charges that he had stopped an inves-tigation of possible illegal campaign contributions by influential Republicans, including a personal friend of President Nixon.

Mr. Steward's role in the affair has become important in the hear-ing because Mr. Eleindienst later cleared him of all wrongdoing in

The U.S. attorney testified yes-terday that he blocked the ap-pearance of a San Diego advertising man, Frank Thornton, a personal friend, before a grand jury to head off bad publicity. He told the committee that, before making the decision, he paid a personal visit to Mr. Thornton's office to examine the advertising man's records came away convinced that Mr. Thornton should be kept out of

He said that Mr. Kleindienst; who was then deputy attorney general, opened the meeting by warning him that there "very serious allegations against me."

Mr. Steward then testified that after he described the affair, Mr. Kleindienst had told him, "if he was a friend of yours, you ought to have stayed the hell out of

After the meeting, Mr. Klein-dienst exonerated Mr. Steward of any wrongdoing. In earlier testimony today, Assistant U.S. Attorney Henry Pe-terson, who was involved in the case with Mr. Steward, told the committee that he believes that Mr. Thornton's records and testimony, along with other evidence, could have led to convic-tions for illegal contributions to

President Nixon'e 1968 campaign Findings Overstated

WASHINGTON, April 18 (NYT).—Richard J. Ramsden, the Wall Street consultant hired hy the government to analyze the financial consequences of antitrust action against ITT, testified yesterday that the Justice Department had overstated the findings of his report.

He said that he had not implied in his report that successful government action would seriously damage the U.S. economy or disastrously affect the corporation's etockholders.

Mr. Ramsden's analysis has been cited by Mr. Kleindienst and Richard W. McLaren, the former chief of the department's Anti-Trust Division, as a principal factor leading to their decision to settle three suits against the conglomerate out of court.

Moscow's Westpolitik

Although the exchange of notes between Moscow and Washington over the bombing of Haiphong has serious potential implications for the future of relations between the Soviet Union and the United States, it is doubtful that long-range developments will be gravely affected. The vote in Bonn next month, on the other hand, on Chancellor Brandt's treaty with the Soviet Union, can have profound effects upon the development of some sense of community in Europe. And the heavy-handed attempts by the Kremlin to strengthen Mr. Brandt's shaky parliamentary position are not helping many's right to work for reunification, and since it would be hard to find a West German leader who would advocate any direct means of securing such unification or, for that matter, voters who would support him. There is no Bismarck within any reasonable distance of political power in Bonn today, and Mr. Brandt's acceptance of the facts of present-day Europe is sensible and states-

The Russians, quite obviously, would like to have the treaty ratified. They want the easing of tensions and the wider trade that would ensue, and to achieve this without disturbing a status quo they did much to create is no hardship. But old techniques die hard in the Kremlin: instead of holding out a carrot of hope to the West Germans who shy away from Mr. Brandt's Ostpolitik, Mikhail Suslov warns West Germany of trade ing "the forces of peace" in Bonn.

these combat-ready divisions, now marching southward, is expected to cross the DMZ and to appear in the battle zone somewhere between Quang Tri and Hué within days. This leaves only two untrained Communist units to defend the People's Republic. Ali others have been committed in the South.

If this tremendous gamble fails, Hanol and its Viet Cong allies have only two alternatives: They can seek the least unfavorabla peace terms; or they can lick their wounds, retreating northward, as they did after the let to prepare another attack some three or four years hence. The latter choice seems more difficult than ever for the little Asian neo-Sparta. There has been evidence of a recent argument between young "economists" and an older faction of ideologues and military leaders in Hanoi's Politburo. To date, the latter "hawk" group has maintained a majority, but this could change. The youth minority wants to slow down the war and concentrate on rebuilding North Viet-

The present offensive has two focal points but one goal. The points are the northern "T" Corps area where Hanoi's regulars are attacking across the DMZ, relying on a short line of supply, and the southerly drive toward An Loc, near Salgon, where the Viet Cong is more directly involved.

A maximum success would be to smash the Saigon army and break South Vietnamese morale, forcing the Nixon administration in Washington to accept settlement terms before the U.S. elections that it would not be prepared to take if it regains office. The minimum sought is capture of a provincial capital and aurrounding area so the Viet Cong could proclaim a "liberated" region with its own "government" and demand negotiations on a new basis recognizing such a Madama Binh, the Viet Cong foreign minister, returned to Paris after a seven-month absence from negotiations here, ready to proclaim a "free" South Vietnamese regime. WASHINGTON. — President Nixon is courting confrontation with the Soviet Union on Vietnam. But Moscow keeps slipping the challenge, thus forcing the President to renew it in ever stronger terms.

That means Mr. Nixon is going to have to do truly terrible things to get the Soviet response he s. But the chance of getting that response is so small that he would be better off scrapping the whole show-including the Moscow summit meeting—than pro-ceeding further down the course he has blocked out for himself. Public evidence of the President's deliberate search to engage the Russians on Vietnam is ample. It has long been known that, with the North Vietnamese, total victory is the only consideration (after all, our demand for capitulation of Germany was the same), but now Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh tells us (IHT, April 10) the Viet Cong's objectives are only "the formation of a government of national concord composed of the various political trends to insure the exercise of the right to self-determination of the South Victnamese people through truly free and democratic elections. Not Worth the Candle

The trouble with all that is that the game isn't worth the candle. To draw the Russians into a definite commitment on Vietnam, the President will have to push them very far. He will have to flatten North Vietnam and maybe even blockade the port of Halphong. Even then it is very doubtful, given the com-petition with China for world Communist leadership, that Moscow would come down bard on Hanoi to abandon the war and

Why and How to End the Bombing

Mr. Nixon's decision to force a major conflict continues to be supplied . . . by the confrontation with the Soviet Union over the issue of its supply of arms to North Vietnam defies sense. If he "wins," it will only be at the sure cost of humiliating the Kremlin. If he "loses" he will have humiliated himself. In either case, the already difficult and delicate Soviet-American negotiations on other issues will be subjected to heavy, perhaps intolerable, new strains. The crisis can hardly fail to give fresh political ammunition to those on both sides who warn that the other cannot be trusted. Particularly likely, and particularly destructive, would be a bitter mutual spurt ahead on building new arms. It does not seem too much to say that Mr. Nixon has put his whole touted "generation of peace" in the

Indeed, the President seems to have been seized anew by several thoroughly discredited cold-war concepts, which we had thought and hoped he had left behind. One such concept is that any bargain with Moscow is the product of American indulgence, not to sell Russia American grain—as though the stuff were not coming out of our ears and as though Canada and others were not desperate to make the sales. Another such concept is that Soviet support of Hanol and American support of Saigon are analogous. two peas in a pod-a contention ignoring, among many points, the disparities between the few hundred tanks and the like which Moscow has given Hanoi for its current offensive, and the tremendous aid in supplies. to say nothing of direct participation, which Washington has afforded Saigon. Secretary Laird says that "80 percent of Soviet Union." Who doubts it?

But it's 80 percent of not much: Ali Soviet aid to North Vietnam last year was valued at only $415 million by the administration. More important, 100 percent of the men and motivation continue to be supplied by North Vietnam itself-a level of 'Vietnamization" surpassing any which even the administration's firmest supporters believe to be within the reach of Saigon, and a level which virtually insures that there will be another Hanoi offensive, regardless of how this one comes out. Just as it is not within Washington's capacity to impart will to Salgon, so it is not within Moscow's capacity -in the inconceivable event that it chose to-to drain will from Hanol Who doubts

Moscow has so far avoided substantial or irrevocable comments on the crisis. This is to the good. It leaves it possible for Mr. Nixon to determine that the bombing raids at Halphong and Hanoi caught the Communists off guard and were eminently successmutual benefit: Thus one can threaten not ful-so much so that there is no further need to continue them. We don't doubt that, with the facts available, he can support such a judgment. Coupled with a post-offensive judgment that Salgon can now fight its own war, such as we suggested last week. this would give Mr. Nixon the rationale he apparently needs in order to halt the bombing, end the American combat role and open negotiations to retrieve the prisoners. A determination that the bombing had had its intended political/military results would also allow Soviet-American relations to return to the cautiously promising track they were on before the latest raids began,

Nationalism is still an elitie movement in Canada, led by what one of its own members described as a "tiny, articulate, noisy minority. But it's significant: Only 10 years ago, every Canadian wanted to be an American."

WASHINGTON, April 18 (AP).

Led by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, the Supreme Court today upheld a loyalty oath in Massachusetts that requires all public employees to pledge that they will oppose the overthrow of the government hy force or violence.

Delivering the 4-to-3 decision, Justice Burger said that the oath did not violate First Amendment freedoms, since It is no more than a commitment not to use illegal force to change the system.

shall, protested that the oath- ment. which state employees must take or face discharge from their johs -firstly violates the free-speech guarantees

But Justice Burger was able to swing a majority by persuading Justices Potter Stewart and Byron R. White, the "swing men" on the court, to join with him, and Justice Harry A. Blackmun. The two later Nixon administra-tion appointees, William H. Rehnquist and Lewis F. Powell jr., could not participate because they joined the court two months after the case was argued.

Appeals Court Ruling

Two years ago, a U.S. District Court in Massachusetts found the oath invalid. Chief Judge Bailey Aldrich of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston said that the phrase in which the oathtaker swears or affirms that he will "oppose the overthrow" of the government was "fatally vague and unspecific." But Justice Burger said that Judge Aldrich's opinion had taken "a highly literalistic approach" and be recalled that the late Justice John M. Harlan had said, "Almost any word or phrase may he rendered vague and ambiguous by dissection with a semantic scalpel"

The Inner Drama of 'Pelléas et Mélisande'

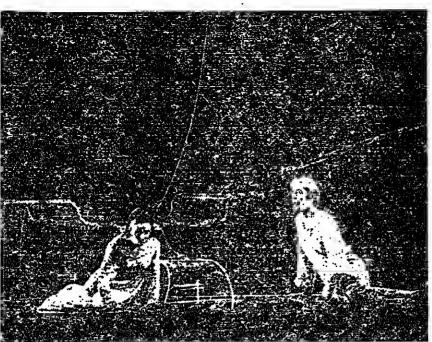

By David Stevens

YONS, France (IHT).-With his new production of "Pelleas et Mélisande," Louis Erlo has given new and convincing proof of his originality and understanding of lyric theater. He has taken a genuinely fresb look at this unique masterplece, ignoring the unessential to get at the heart of the matter, and his Lyons Opéra team realizes his plan to perfection.

In a way. Erio has done here for "Pelléas" what Wieland Wagner did for "Tristan und Isolde" in his famous 1962 Bayreuth production. He has peeled away the outer realism and 70 years of encrusted layers of "impressionism" to expose the inner drama found wholly in the words and

The "scenery" which Erio also devised, is entirely in plexiglasa platform on which is mounted multilevel structure that seems almost immaterial except for occasional reflections in its surfaces and the outline of light striking its edges. Behind this hang five vertical panels on which projections (made from photographs of paintings) are employed for atmospheric suggestion.

Tha apparatus provides only the necessary minimum of conformity to the plece's stage instructions, and the characters do

The characters are dressed in simple pajama-like robes, and knee-length beards and other paraphernalia are dispensed with. The action is as suggestive psychologically as realistically. When the enraged Golaud seizes Mélisande by the hair to throw he to the ground, it is he who collapses, while she seems to move effortlessly-and permanently-

This time, maybe because women are traveling a lot, or maybe because we all need more color, it is hard to tell that the winter ready-to-wear clothes are not actually heading for the beach. # Rolling Eyeballs and Strained Larynxes

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss PARIS, April 18 (IHT) —Jean-Louis Barrault opened tha 1972 Théatre des Nations season last night at the Théatre Récamier with the Asian Music Circle of London, a group of Indian musicians and dancers who displayed their art, and, after an intermission, the Roy Hart Theater, also of London, which demonstrated volce and move-

The interior of the theater has been rearranged with four tiera of planked stands facing a central square, giving it the look of a sports stadium. The performances were given in the open ment exercises.

"The theater is a game which recreates life in space by means of human beings." Earrault said in his introduction. "We intend to study the instrument of the game: the human being which is composed of breath and a spinal column," Last night was the first of six to be devoted to "the science of respiration and vocal practice," in Barrault's terminolbreathing methods, Indian musical instruments and the significance of gestures in Oriental dance, speke. His theories were illustrated by Maitre Rothin and Prof. Togo Mukherjee with Yosa exercises and by the Asian Music Circle with a concert on flute and table and with song and dance. Tara Rajkumer, a dark beauty, performed a miniature dance drama of a murderous witch whose plot to poison Krishna's child turns on herself. She also did some atartling eyerolling, whirling her pupils up and down, in figures of eight, and with a flickering from right

The members of the Roy Hart troupe—their master stalking with superior smirk among them -strained their larynxes over eight octaves, emitting the crles of the beasts of the field, of the birds of the air and of the farmyard, and those of humans in love and in acrimonious dispute. There was squeeking and squealing, bursts of hearty laughter, sobs, bellowing threats, soft cooing, plercing plping, baby whines, furious disagreements, an ensemble echoing of peeling church bells and a hoarse attempt at the "Hallelujah Chorus." The volume and length of this cacophony roused audience hostillty. Impolite spectators began to imitate the imitations. A leading French critic, deafened, left the theater, and his exit was applauded. Mr. Eart, after trying to silence everyone with a contemptuous stare, acidly commented: "This is the Common Market we are to join."

Fundamentals

Barrault, it would seem, in-tends to provide a diet of theatrical fundamentals, a scheme that will interest budding thespians more than it will the general public that expects profes-sionalism. In the past tha Théâtre des Nations has brought to Paris distinguished companies from all over the world: the Berliner Ensemble, the Royal Stockholm Theater, the No players from Japan, Filippo's Neapolitan comedians, the Vienna Opera, the Peking Opera, to name but a few. All their performers had already mastered the science of inhaling and exhaling and movement. It was part of their early training.

The present Theatre des Nations policy is to reduce things theatrical to a primitive state, to show us the embryo of the acting art, to take us behind the scenes at the prep schools. * * *

Labiche's airy, funny fable about a band of yokels visiting the big city, there to tumble into hilarious troubles, "La Cagnotte," has been re-edited into a socialistic sermon hy the Théâtre National of Strasbourg, which is performing its heavy-handed humorless adaptation at the Théatre de l'Est Parisien.

The compact, witty play has been split in pieces, the gaps refilled with odd innovations, A cavalry officer and a tricolored Marlanne do B no-holds-barred java to Mistinguett's old number, "Ça, C'est Paris" to emphasize the corruntion of the wicked capital. During the once comic restaurant scene of the second act, the Bourse façade cracks and crumbles, as though it were the temole in Andreyev's "Samson in Chains," and ruined stock-market plungers put pistols to their temples. As it is a government-sponsored production the program is, of course, filled with quotations from Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels (why no comments by Pompidou and Debre?). LBoiche, on the grounds that he served later in the Commune regime, is compared to Daumier as B critic of social injustice. The butterfly comedy has been cruelly broken on an iron wheel, its merriment has evaporated, the text squeezed dry hy clumsy hands and broad

Japan Seeks Import Boost, Banker Says

NEW YORK, April 18 (Reuters).-Toshlo Nakamura, president of Mitsubishi Bank Ltd., said today Japan is encouraging imports as part of its plan to reverse the flow of foreign currency into the country. ...

Speaking at a press conference, he forecast further liberal-ization of Japan's import restrictions, but he declined to estimate how fast such an easing would be made.

He said efforts hy the Japanese financial and business community to reverse currency inflows, which have the support of the government, stem from coutinued gains in the nation's reserves despite last year's 18.88percent revaluation of the yen in relation to the dollar.

He blamed the reserves gain on the domestic recession which prompted an increased export effort. He also cited expectations of another rise in the value of the yen, which has made it attractive in foreign exchange markets.

He said other steps being taken to reverse inflows include stimulation of domestic consumption, liberalization of domestic credit, and encouraging Japanese to make capital investments abroad and to buy foreign secu-

Mr. Nakamura added, however, that he doubts there will be a eudden increase in Japanese purchases of U.S. securities, since investors are relatively unfamiliar with the American companies involved and fear of another yen revaluation presents a further element of risk in such Durchases.

Analysis Disagree on Current Prospects

Wall St. Long-Term Outlook Seen Bright
New York (AP-DJ).—Talk to most money managers here for the Institutional Investor Containing the containing the containing the cyclical sectors. As Mr. Shanshan explains it: Aside from the cyclical containing the containing the cyclical sectors are improving industry funda-Conference and you walk away with a pretty bullish longer-term outlook for the stock market.

But that is where the accord ends. There are some decided differences of opinion about the short-term outlook And clearly the No. 1 question, at least as far as new stock purchases are concerned, is the kind of investment game plan you should follow if you think the ultimate direction of the market is up.

Two men from Capital Research & Management Co., a respected Los Angeles muhual-fund management company, strongly endorsed cyclical stocks as a significant backbone to any restructuring of portfolios.

"For large amounts of money, it's the best strategy around," says Michael Shanahan, who runs Capital's research operations. "With prospects of a corporate profit growth of about 15 percent a year over the next two years, along with reasonable multiples and yields, you've got a large number of companies around at attractive prices," he adds. As for some skeptics who argue that many cyclical stocks are already selling close to, or at, historically high multiples, Mr. Shanahan declares: "If the cyclical play is over, then the market is over."

Comments William C. Newton, a vice-president of Capital Research: "It's true the many cyclical issues are selling at high multiples, but that's on depressed earnings, not on the prospects." Transportation and chemicals are viewed as recovery there are improving industry fundamentals, notably a hetter regulatory and labor environment in transportation and significant reductions in planned capacity in the chemical sector. Airlines are particularly appealing to Mr. Newton, who says be would be a buyer on any correction in the group. The capital-goods sector is another area viewed favorably, with attention called to the metals.

مكن ونالالهل

Consumer durables are another favorite of the pair, and Mr. Newton thinks new purchases also should recognize the appeal of hanks, utilities and multi-industry companies Disagreement on '72 Outlook

Although both men agree that the basic longerterm direction of the market is up, they disagree about the 1972 outlook.

Mr. Shanahan does not think the market at year-end will be much higher than it is right now. He thinks that as the national election nears, the political uncertainties will be a restraining force on the market, On the other hand, Mr. Newton, who thinks a 5-to-10 percent correction would be healthy for the market, sees the Dow Jones industrial average breaking 1,000 this year. However, he offers a word of caution. He notes that the average increase for the market from one year prior to a national election until it is held is 18 percent. And the market, since last November, is already up about 20 percent.

It thereby finally moved above the barrier on the stock charts— a figure of 968.85 set on May 14, 1969—and closed at its best level since Dec. 19, 1988, when it stood at 975.14.

The Dow's next target-which might take some time to sur-mount—is the summit of 985.21 reached on Dec. 3, 1968. This represents the peak of the great bull market of 1967-88, when conglomerates and other Wall Street favorites enjoyed their turn in the investment sun

In the final hour today, slam-ours saw their gains trimmed and other sectors of the market also felt profit-taking.

Brokerage concerns and television networks were among the market's weaker groups, as total volume swept up to 19.41 million shares from yesterday's 15.39 mil-llon shares, which had marked the slowest trading in two weeks. Merrill Lynch, the world's biggest broker, dropped 2 7.8 to 41 1/2. This resulted from the company's report of lower earnings for the opening quarter of 1972—a period that has seen most corporations in other industries raise their profits. Pinpointed by Merrill Lynch as the main cause of its profit decline from the record 1971 level was "a very poor bond market." Directors, meanwhile, voted to

Connally Eyes Tougher U.S. Role Abroad

By Marilyn Berger WASHINGTON, April 18 (WP).—Secretary of the Treasury

John B. Connally said today that the United States would coon have to back up private corpora-tions in their dealings with foreign governments which control natural resources vital to the United States.

Speaking to the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, Mr. Connally said a "critical issue of American economic diplomacy" was the fact that "this country is an enormous consumer of raw materials, many of which we don't have ... " He said: "At the present time American corporations make these deals with other countries... we are asking American business to negotiste with foreign govern-ments... as though they were on a par.

"No company," he said, "can deal (with foreign governments) on an equal basis,"

Mr. Connally, who has long favored a tough stance with foreign governments on economic issues, told the committee, which is holding bearings on fuels and energy: "Particularly now that OPIC (the Oversees Private Investment Corp: guarantees investment overseas, where we are guaranteeing their investments, the United States should put itself in a position . . . to say to for-eign governments: you don't just negotlate with the foreign enterprise but with the U.S. govern-meot before you change a deal... I think our government should be more aggressive." In his prepared statement Mr. Connally urged greater efforts to develop Americao sources of ecergy. He told the committee that "our oil and other hydrocarbon resources are not scarce." If they were to be developed without reference to cost there would be enough for "hundreds of

Membership For Funds

NYSE Plans

By Terry Robards

NEW YORK, April 18 (NYT).— Financial institutions, traditionally barred from membership on New York Stock Exchange, would be permitted to join under a modification in the rules that has been worked out tentatively by the exchange's staff.

The proposal, to be offered to the membership for comment before heing put up for a formal vote, could be changed prior to implementation,

The staff is understood to have concluded that institutional membership should be allowed as long as the brokerage affiliates of the institutions obtain no more than 20 percent of their business from their institutional parents.

The plan was worked out by the exchange in response to a directive in February from the Securities & Exchange Commission, which has asked all of the nation's stock exchanges to draw up proposals governing institu-tional membership.

Most Controversial

The membership issue is con-Sidered perhaps the most con troversial confronting the industry at present. Under current rules, such institutions as mutual funds, pension funds and the like buy and sell through member firms and pay them sales commissions, if they want to deal on the Big Board.

Permitting them to join, or have brokerage affiliates join. would theoretically enable them to recapture a portion of these commissions. Most of the regional exchanges have permitted institutions to join as a way to attract business away from the Big Board. The SEC has ruled that hrokerage affiliates or subsidiaries of institutions should he allowed to join any exchange so long as they obtained the "predominant portion" of their commission business from nonaffiliated sources.

The SEC was intentionally vague as to its definitition of "predominant portion," The exchange is said to have decided to interpret this as 80 percent.

Profound Impact The proposal could have a profound impact on certain of the exchange's existing member firms, some of whom operate their own mutual fund subsidiaries and credit commission business for these funds against management

This would be prohibited under the new rule and the fund subsidiaries would have to hegin doing business with other brokerage houses, so that they would compete on an equal footing with tha broker affiliates of other mutual funds.

into nine. He led to the spade queen, but East took the king and played a second club. This was South's fate on the diagramed deal, reported by Scot-tish writer Hugh Kelsey.

North-South reached three notrump by a straight-forward route. After three suit hids South jumped to three no-trump, and was just as confident when he saw the dummy. The combined hands held 29 high-card points and every suit was well-stopped. What could go wrong?

A club lead would have been effective, but South's jump suggested that he was well-protected in the unbid suit. West therefore led a diamond, since dummy's second suit is often the declarer's weak spot.

South happily finessed in diamonds, but was less pleased when dumny's jack fell to the king and East returned a club. South won, and could still see several chances to turn eight sure tricks

South won and tried ducking a heart, playing for a three-three break. But East won and played spade. This left South's communications in ruins and there was no longer a way to make Declarer could have survived, playing double-dummy, after the first four tricks by cashing his red-suit winners and putting West in with a diamond. Later West could be put back with a club, and forced to lead from the spade jack at the finish.

But South had no need to jeopardize the contract. If be had considered the possibility that his hand might be short of entries, he would have refused the diamond finesse at the first trick. He should have put up the ace and played the spade queen.

This would have insured nine tricks against any distribution, and as the cards lie be would have made two overtricks. Rejecting the finesse would have heen worth three tricks.

THE FATAL FRIENDSHIP Marie Antoinette, Count Fersen and the Flight to Varennes

By Stanley Loomis. Mustrated. Doubleday & Co. 337 pp. $9.95.

romantic vapors, impaled on the pens of writers who made her into a soap-opera heroine. There is something about doomed royal couples that attracts the meretricious. Stanley Loomis's Marie Antoinette is a queen of a different suit. No mere queen of hearts, but a woman whose character was forged in the smithy of events. The line of his book follows the "Fatal Priendship" between the French queen and the Swedish Count Hans-Axel von Fersen. It was fatal because it ended for one, on the guillotine, and for the other, as the victim of mob vic-lence in Stockholm. And it was more than friendship, from the moment the Viking-like Swede was noticed by the queen at a masked ball and became her most devoted attendant.

Mr. Loomis has convinced me that they were lovers, even though the significant passages in Fersen's letters were muti-lated by one of his grand-nephews, who was bent on dispelling "all injudicious con-jecture." "It did not apparently occur to him," Mr. Loomis writes, "that the suppressed passages might henceforth lend themselves to any interpretation and, in fact, be summoned to the support of the very contention that he wished to discourage." Mr. Loomis does not try to convert an absence of proof into proof. He states a personal opinion.

The hallmark of his writing, in this as in his previous book on Paris during the Terror, is fairness. He never stretches a fact to suit a thesis. He never chooses among conflicting in-terpretations the one that will best advance his narrative. He does not tug at our heartstrings. These qualities of measure and restraint contribute to the persuasiveness of his account. One never feels, as one does in certain works of popular history, that one is being "sold" a line of goods.

Indeed, the research for this book is so careful and the back-ground of 18th-century European politics so precisely brushed in that one begins to wonder where the boundary lies between "popular" history and history per se—could it be that the latter, when it is chunsily written and full of pages with more footnotes "unpopular" history?

Because Mr. Loomis refuses to embelish the evidence, Fersen, usually presented as a romantic hero, emerges as an unsympathetic, secretive, deceitful

MARIE ANTOINETTE was man, only partly redeemed by put to death not once but his devotion to the queen. He a hundred times, smothered in was capable, for instance, of hiding in the house of a friend in order to sleep with that friend's wife. After a week under the eaves, he had a note delivered to the friend announcing his arrival in town, went out the back door, came in the front door, and was received with open arms by the unsuspecting cuckold. More important, it was Fersen who encouraged the royal family to flee Paris in 1791 and plotted their escape.

Lonis XVI, who had publicly accepted the revolution's goals, agreed to try to join the ene-In their flight, the royal family was recognized and captured. Brought back to Paris, the king and queen were branded as traitors. Thus, Fersen, moti-vated by a desire to save the queen, contributed to the royal family's downfall. When, after the death of her husband, Marie Antomette was jailed in the Conciergerie. Fersen sat in safety in Brussels, and never lifted a finger to save her. One of Mr. Loomis's most engrossing chapters describes the rescue attempts plotted by other friends, as well as sympathetic guards, who were not afraid to take risks. Romantic heroes seldom live up to their reputations, and Fersen's strongest trait was caution.

The plots to save the queen failed, as did the flight to Varennes. Mr Loomis is drawn to historical situations in which the purpose of great figures is defeated by a combination of small errors, for, as he puts it: "One feels momentarily in the presence of history reduced to its primary ingredient; the fallible human being."

Marie Antoinette, the most fallible of queens, was equal to a destiny for which nothing had prepared her. All that is normally required of a queen is to cement an alliance, give birth to an heir, and look well in ceremonies and official portraits, Cast for a comedy of manners, she found herself playing out a tragedy. As she wrote in a letter: "It is through adversity that we finally come to realize who we She was jailed, her son was taken from her and made to testify against her, odious accusations were made at ber triel, her family in Austria ahandoned her, and she was finally beheaded. That is enough adversity for the most severe identity crisis.

Canada will be played in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

John (Bunny) Ahearne, English president of the International Ice Hockey League, said the matches will be refereed according to international rules, which slightly differ from these used by the National Hockey League.

Kryczka added that Canada will play the Russians "with an unrestricted team composed of players from various clubs."

"Our team will include players from the National Hockey Lea-gue, but not necessarily all NHL players," he said. "Our intention is to select a team in which any Canadian citizen can play, regardless of his professional or amateur status, he said.

For Inter, survival depends to a large extent on whether it can San Siro, in the first leg, neither Giubertoni, the center-haif Inter signed from Palermo, nor Bedin, its veteran right-half who has played in European and Intercontinental Cup successes, was fit. This meant that Milan was obliged to natch the defense with Beliugi, normally a fullback, at center-half and Oriali, really a midfield player, given the un-grateful task of marking little, red-haired Jimmy Johnstone, Celtic's brilliant outside-right. This was all very well in a home match, where Celtic's chief concern was obviously just to get the result it did. At Glasgow, where Celtic will attack in green and white waves, it will be quite another matter.

features of this confrontation is that Inter will not trust Giacinto Facchetti, its huge captain and left-back to look after Johnstone. It is sad to see Facchetti's spiendid career passing into apparent twilight in the very season in which he passed Caligari's record of 59 Italian caps. The truth is that Facchetti, who has scored a record number of goals for an Italian League fullback, has always been at his best coming forward, never in defense. He was badly exposed in the 1970 World Cup final when Brazil's Jairzinho pulled him constantly into the middle, leaving abundant space for Carlos Alberto to overlap down the right wing, and score an inevitable goal.

WASHINGTON.—Here, at last, esking this question because very is something every American has needed for years-e concise guide to the Vietnem war which will help him avoid thinking about the Vietnam war:

• Start of Vietnam war-Some authorities say the Vietnam war started in 1937; others say it was 1941 Partisan Democrats say

President Eisenhower started it during the 1950s; Republicans say President Kennedy started it, It dy started it, It is best not to think about when the Vietnam war started, because it will not make any difference any-

Who is President Lyndon B. Nixonger? - It was during the Lyndon B. Nixonger administration that the Victram war was escalated, coonskinned, Vietnamfixed, re-Americanized, simonized and sold to the South Vietnamese as the best used war available anywhere at comparable price. Many people report that thinking about President Lyndon B. Nixonger depresses them, whereas people wbo do not think about him say they feel fine. It is best not to think about President Lyndon B. Nixenger, since it will not make any difference auyhow.

• Light at end of tunnel—Ever since the Vietnam war started and remember, dou't start thinking about when that might have heen: there has been light at the end of the tunnel, which, decoded from the Pentagonese, means that victory has been just around the corner, Many experts, in fact, say we won the wer four years ago when the enemy was defeated at Tet time, Others contend that the war is still going on. It is a waste of time thinking about whether the war is still going on or not, since it will not make any difference anyhow.

 Anti-war demoustrations— The important thing to remember about anti-war demonstrations is that they don't make any difference. Do not think about why are we in Vletnam?-It is not a good idea to go around few people know the answer. Those who do know the answer do not agree on what it is. Even If you knew the answer, what difference would it make? We would still be in Vietnam. It is best not to think about why we are there, because it will not make any difference anyhow.

9 Paris peace talks - Peace taiks began in Paris four years ago. In the span of time since elapsed-a span in which the allied powers were able to defeat the Kaiser in World War I; in which the United States-after its entry-and its allies were able to defeat the Axis in World War II-the Paris peace talks have agreed on the shape of the conference table. Many persons say there aren't any peace talks. Others say that if we were fighting the Eaiser today we would be on his side. It is idle to think about the Paris peace talks, because they will not make any difference anybow.

• Laos-There is general agreement that Laos exists, but the Tinited States government resents people who think about it, This is hecause the war there is being waged by the Central Intelligence Agency, and is, therefore, classified "top secret." It is better not to think about Laos, not only because the Justice Department has several grand juries sniffing about for incipient Ellsbergs, but also beceuse it will not make any difference anyhow.

• Taxpayer responsibility-You may ask: "Am I, as the purchaser the destructive wherewithal brought to bear upon Vietnam, responsible for the devastation of that miserable country?" Most emperts agree that you are, Some experts say there is no reason to feel bad, because the Vietnamese have brought it on themselves. Others say there is no reason to feel bad, because it is going to go right on happening, no matter now you feel. The best thing is not to think about responsibility, since it will not make any difference anyhow.

Mexican Artists Can Pay Their Taxes With Their Work

By Marlise Simons

MEXICO CITY, April 18 (WP). —In a new deal for the art world, the Mexican treasury has agreed that from now on painters and sculptors may pay their taxes with their own work.

The rule seems simple enough: The artist who wants to stop paying cash registers his name at the treasury. Each April when Mexicans pay their taxes, the artist hands in the piece or pieces which ha believes cover his debt to the government, then a commission of experts decides if he

Government Property

The work becomes property of the nation and may be placed in public buildings or loaned to museums and exhibits or perhaps sent to Mexican embassies abroad, Inevitably the appearance of the taxman as an art critic has caused a stir among Mexican artists, but so far the majority sound pleased.

"We think it will work," said one member of the artists' group that put the idea to the tax authorities. "The most difficult part, which is pricing the work, has been left to the artist himself.

"Of course, people should stay close to their normal rates, but if the commission disagrees with the value, an artist can submit a different piece, or just pay his taxes in cash. After all, it's only optional."

At the National Institute of Fine Arts, which is to receive and distribute the works of art that will come in as tax payments. officials were delighted. "We are very pleased," said Jorge Hernaudez. director of the department of plastic arts. "Both the artist and the country will profit from this. Now the nation will own evaluates art according to the a lot of art which otherwise it prices in the galleries," said Mrs. could not afford."

Director Hernandez conceded, however, that the government is going to step on very delicata ground. "What with artistic sensitivities, I am sure that the commission and its decisions will be a subject of constant debate," he said.

Some Doubts

But if the new tax collecting methods were welcomed by most artists, at least one famous painter had his doubts. Rufino Tamayo, whose canvases command up to $25,000 in the galleries of New York, already had one disappointing experience. Some 20 years ago the government offered a similar opportunity, the painter's wife said, but then it put only half of the real value on Tamayo's painting, "We think it's a good idea if the treasury really prices in the galleries," said Mrs. Tamayo. "Otherwise we'd rather pay cash."

Gallery owners in Mexico City's posh "Zona Rosa" speculate how this move by the government will affect the art market. While painters and sculptors are bound to profit from the greater exposure of their work that government ownership will bring them, some dealers thought that the government might now stop buying art for its museums and instead wait for the taxman to come around.

One art dealer said she thought the tax reform was a great move all around, "The artist now has a way to dispose graciously of the work he cannot sell," she said, "and the government will get R much better interest rate on its tax returns. Just think what today's pieces will be worth in 20
